It was the most frightening experience of my life.
That's how it began.

It was a warm april morning. I was lying in the bed untill I was interrupted by a phone ringing.

- "What made you call me so early? It must be a war!" -
- I asked the interrupter.

- "Good morning to you too, John! We've got a new task.
Get up and shine! See you at the office building."

That was Tom, a handsome slim young man. He was a director of the photo agency.

I got up and walked to the bathroom slowly. At the mirror
I saw a middle-aged bearded red-hair man. My complexion was far from ideal.

No sooner had I left the bathroom, than Tom called again.
I had to refuse the breakfast and drove to the place.

- "So, we have to make a photo of a bear!" - Tom explained -
- "I've got everything, let's go to the meadow of the forest nearby!"

It was shing outside. No wind, birds were singing,
I was hungry... We waited for more than two hours.
My stomach became sing with the birds. I decided to open a chocolate bar. The next moment I heard Arnold, our operator, which we call Jim Lerry (he has the same face!), shouting out: "Bear!" That meant that he got too close.
He was intricated by my bar. I dropped it and started running.

Tom was running too. By the way, I was overwhelmed by his speed. After we got in the car, the bear was stunned by all the cameras we left. With agility, we drove away.

~~As it~~
Later ~~it~~ it turned out that Arnold made the photos and we were highly paid. Now I have my own bear.
